Sibley & Son in Suit to Recover $5000 for Material

HOW ABOUT DOG TAX

John E. and Nason Sibley of Antioch filed suit for $5,000 in the circuit court Tuesday against Bernice E. Peters and others, also of Antioch. The complainant claims that as a contracting firm, known as J. E. Sibley & Son, materials and lumber was furnished for a building on the Peters place and that the defendant gave a note for $5,000 as security, and that the note has not been taken up.

PARENT-TEACHERS ASSN. TO GIVE ENTERTAINMENT

The Parent-Teachers association of Antioch will give the first of a series of entertainments Friday evening, Feb. 2, at the high school auditorium. The entertainment for Feb. 2 will be given by a trio of students from Northwestern University. School of Music and Oratory, comprising a singer, reader and pianist.

THE DOG TAX

There is a dog tax ordinance in this village. Why is it not enforced? According to the ordinance it is now time to gather such information for the collecting of dog licenses and to have it ready for the village marshal for collection March 1st.

Last year this tax was overlooked and about the same time a wheel tax was being discussed for extra revenue. Why create new revenue acts and let others slide by without enforcement.

The ordinance reads that all dogs within the corporate limits are to be licensed at $1 for males and $3 for females. The village marshal doing the collecting and such persons owning dogs and not paying for them shall get rid of them or have the village marshal do so. Dogs running the streets without the necessary license tags are considered a public nuisance and shall be disposed of by the village marshal.

20 Years Ago in Antioch

Thursday, January 23, 1903.

Henry Herman was a Chicago visitor on Tuesday.

John Horan and Joseph Savage were county seat visitors Thursday.

Miss Susie Morley went to Chicago Tuesday for a short stay with friends.

The Armour ice house at Round Lake is filled and those who have been employed there returned Tuesday.

The Rebekah Social held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stanton last week was largely attended and an excellent evening was enjoyed.

Manager Frank Drom of the Barker Lumber Co., at Genoa Junction, and his wife, spent Sunday with Antioch relatives and friends.

If the weather had permitted the Leona Lake ice houses would have been filled this week, as they had but three more days work to complete it.

Ben Van Patien and Tom Burnett were Salem visitors last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fliwiler entertained a few friends last Saturday evening.

After about fourteen years of service in the employ of the Wisconsin Central railroad, W. F. Ziegler resigned his position as station agent at this place Friday and is succeeded by T. V. Singer of Hancock, Wis. Mr. Ziegler has been tendered and accepted the cashiership of the new State bank, and being capable and worthy in every respect will no doubt meet with the same success that has marked his career as a railroad man. He left on Saturday for a few weeks rest with his parents in Michigan.

Millions of Fish Placed in Illinois Lakes

Twenty-six carloads of fish, numbering millions, were distributed to various lakes, rivers and ponds in Illinois by the state fish and game department in 1922, according to the report of W. J. Stratton, chief warden.

Twenty-three carloads were fish rescued from backwaters at Beardstown and Meredola. These were distributed over central and southern Illinois.

Owing to the spring overflow of the Illinois and Mississippi rivers, the report stated, hundreds of thousands of fish were left in the backwaters where they hatched their young. It was necessary to hire several rescue crews from Galena to Cairo to return millions of these small fish back to deep water.

There were hatched at the Spring Grove hatchery in McHenry county 10,000,000 wall-eyed pike, 12,000,000 lake trout, 2,000,000 black bass and 250,000 perch and snafish. The wall-eyed pike were planted in the deep lakes of northern Illinois.

The lake trout were placed in lake Michigan, and the bass, with the exception of three carloads shipped to central Illinois, were placed in 70 lakes in the northern part of the state.

The perch and snafish were sent to central and southern streams.

The receipts of the fish and game division for the year ending June 30, 1922 were $252,196.34, and expenditures $204,655.93, leaving a balance of $27,741.01.

Thirty-six thousand pounds of confiscated fish were donated to the state and charitable institutions, which, figured at 10 cents a pound, would be $3,600.00 and would bring the total profit for the year to $31,401.61.

Cow Wrecked Kitchen Floor, Claimed in Suit

A lease said to be unfulfilled by the landlord, formed the basis of a suit for $2,000 damages heard Saturday in the circuit court by Judge Robert K. Welch, with W. Engler, former tenant on a farm located west of Channel Lake, as plaintiff and George Dunford, his former landlord, as defendant. Engler in recital of events on the farm in 1920, declared that in the lease the landlord promised to build a milk house on the farm to be ready Dec. 1, 1920, and a silo to be ready Sept. 15, 1921. Although he stayed on the farm two years neither was completed, he charged.

On the other hand, Dunford arose with a bill setting forth that damages, rent and other items amounting to $1200 was due the plaintiff. He offered to "set off" this amount from the damages asked by Engler. The damage was done to trees and the floor of the farm home while Engler was there, he claims. Included in the bill is $1100 for two years rent. Engler's cattle had a strange tendency of walking over and destroying the kitchen floor, it is said.

Dunford declared on the stand that he had set out to build the silo but that Engler failed to live up to his agreement and help him.

ZION A. & P. STORE MUST NOT SELL SWINE PRODUCTS

The management of the Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co.'s store at Zion, a concern that located there last week, was notified that legal action would be taken against them by Zion leaseholders if they did not desist violating a certain section of the said lease. The notice served on the company was served by certain leaseholders and warned them that the selling of lard, lard oil, or any swine products was strictly forbidden in the City of Zion. Brad Simmons, owner of the building, was also notified of the violation by his tenants.

That section of the lease which was violated reads:

"Or a place for the raising, keeping or selling of swine; or a place for the sale of pork, lard, lard oil, or other products of swine; or a place for the keeping or selling for human food of anything forbidden by God to be eaten in the 7th to the 19th verses of the 14th chapter of Deuteronomy."

Zion is probably the only city in the world that lives up to the Levitical or Mosaic laws regarding clean and unclean foods. The orthodox Jew will neither eat swine flesh, or anything cooked in lard, but Zion has embraced this section of the Mosaic law in their leases as a religious community.

Marketing Co. Members Ship to Burlington

The farmers who have signed the Marketing Company contracts were forced to quit the local plant Monday. Arrangements had already been made by those anticipating the shut-out to haul the milk to Burlington. At the present time it is reported that there is over 9000 pounds of milk going to the Marketing Company's plant at Burlington, more than 8000 pounds of which is that shot out at the local plant and a little over 1000 pounds from the Lake Villa plant.

Many reports are rumored around about of those who are contending that the Marketing Company contract is not binding but at present no one can be found who has actually signed up with the local plant who holds a Marketing Company contract. It has been reported that four farmers have switched the other way and signed up with the Marketing Company.

PLANS FOR COURTHOUSE

William J. Obbe of Highland Park, member of the building committee, was in Waukegan Tuesday with plans for the $300,000 addition to the courthouse, to talk over the proposition with the various county officials as to the most convenient arrangement of the offices. It is planned to have the plans ready for the approval of the supervisors at the next meeting.

Communication

Jan. 5, 1923.

To the Lake Villa Township Commercial Association.

Few realize how much we have in our township to be proud of. As "Uncle Thomas" recently said in the Lake Villa News, "Lake Villa Township is the saddle and harness horse of the Hackney pony capital of the United States." Hogs, holsteins, Jerseys and guernsey breeders are also coming to the front.

Were we to comb our township for it an estimate, we would stand very 3,000. For high compared to any other township, not alone in Illinois but in the United States.

Now I propose a visiting day to the various places of interest in our township. Invite the farmers of our county to make the trip with us. Include the supervisors, the fair officials, all Farm Bureau members and newspaper men. Make the trip "snappy." Start, say at 10:30 a. m. on the minute. Arrange trip to get back to Lake Villa at 12:15, serve free coffee, milk, sandwiches, doughnuts and then start at 1 p. m. sharp and conclude the trip by say 3 p. m.

We can do the day for say $125. Maybe a lot less. I will give $25.00 toward the fund.

Suppose for consideration (by no means meant to be complete) we plan to visit:

O. W. Lehmann's—Horses (saddle, harness, jumpers) hogs, sheep goats, dogs, birds.

J. K. Dering's—Horses (harness and saddle) ponies, hogs, Jerseys.

E. E. Lehmann's—Hogs, Guernseys.

E. J. Lehmann's—Horses (saddle).

The Bonners—Holsteins, seeds.

Everett Fish—Holsteins.

Leslie Hatchings—Holsteins.

Fowler Farm—Holsteins.

R. M. Sherwood—Feeding steers.

Jas. J. Barnstable—Feeding steers.

Williamson Farm—Feeding steers.

Bert Gallger—Shorthorn cattle, hogs.

Henry Potter—Birds.

Joseph Koelstra—Birds.

None should be offended by not being enumerated. The above comes to mind as I write this.

It would make it quite a holiday, a paying one too by inviting those interested in such matters to come and see what we have to offer. It would draw attention to our township from without and give those from within a greater knowledge of their own neighborhood—which would mean a betterment to all concerned.

In addition to the suggestion and contribution, I offer my services in any capacity to make the event one of real pride and benefit to everyone in our township.

Frank T. Fowler.

JOHN A. STRANG PASSES AWAY AT ELGIN HOSPITAL

John A. (Pike) Strang, 67 years old, one of the best known men in western Lake county, where he lived all his life, and was the "king of cattle buyers," died Saturday morning at the Elgin state hospital, where he was taken several months ago, following a general breakdown in health.

Mr. Strang had been very prosperous but when his health began to fail he was unable to look after his business and sustained heavy financial reverses, which preyed on his mind. He never crowded a creditor and this was one of the principal causes of the financial condition which last summer resulted in bankruptcy proceedings.

Mr. Strang is survived by the following brothers and sisters: Eugene D., of St. Petersburg, Fla., and George I. Strang of Marshfield, Wis.; Mrs. Cora E. Anderson, Iola, Kas., and Mrs. Jane M. Stewart, of Waukegan.

He was born at Millburn and had been a lifelong resident of this county. Funeral services were held Monday morning from the home of his nephew, George W. Strang, Waukegan. Interment was in Millburn cemetery.

$557,550 FARM TAX
REDUCTION SECURED

Decreases in equalized state land valuations which amount to a saving in farm taxes of $557,550 for 1923, are announced by the Illinois tax commission, following the hearing held at Springfield in November at which the Illinois Agricultural Association and the county farm bureaus of the state entered a plea for a cut in the tax valuations of farm lands.

The county farm bureaus and the I. A. A. have been working on the tax problem in behalf of farmers for two years. They are the only organizations in the history of the state which have represented the farmer in taxation matters in the same way that railroads and corporations have always been represented.

This reduction in 1923 amounts to about twice the year for all projects and many times the amount spent by the local farm bureau.

The reduction, combined with the raises in valuations which were prevented when the farm bureaus and I. A. A. appeared before the commission in 1921 (according to the public statement of William H. Malone, one of the members of the commission) makes a total of more than a million dollars, $1,072,050, which have been saved the farmers in taxes during the past two years.

The I. A. A. and the county farm bureaus have never tried for anything but strict justice for the farmer in the way of taxes. Their investigations showed that the farmer was paying too much.

In former years, before the farmer had these organizations, there was no one to find out for him just where he stood in his taxes. He might think he was being taxed too high, but he had no way of proving it.

Then, early in 1921, the farm bureaus and the I. A. A. started to investigate. Their investigation showed that from 1902 to 1921, the percentage of increase in full valuations of lands in the state as a whole had been more than double the corresponding increase in town and city lots and five times the corresponding increase in the railway main track and right of way. The figures showed that in the state outside of Cook county farm lands had borne practically all of the increased cost of state government during the last twenty years.

It took nearly two years of slow investigation by experts for the I. A. A. and the county farm bureaus to assemble all statistical evidence. And yet there are some who say the organization has done nothing.

POULTRY DAY AND
SALE BIG SUCCESS

The Farm Bureau office was jammed full on January 15 at our poultry day and cockerel sale, while numbers of others could not get in. Sixty-nine birds sold for an average of $3.00 per bird. The following list shows how the various breeds averaged.

5 White Wyandottes averaged $4.15
4 White Rocks averaged 3.87
4 Rhode Island Reds averaged 3.23
15 Barred Rocks averaged 3.13
13 Buff Orpingtons averaged 2.86
8 Leghorns averaged 1.16
4 Turkeys averaged 6.87
4 Partridge Rocks averaged 1.00

Those who consigned birds to this sale were well pleased at the results especially as this was a new venture.

Professor Carl's lecture was much appreciated. He emphasized the importance of feeding a balanced mash, especially the animal protein part. For 100 hens he states 3 to 5 gallons of milk per day was necessary. But that if tankage or meat scrap in the mash was fed, the protein would cost much less. He also urged home mixing of the mash especially for flocks of 100 hens or more as a considerable saving was thus possible. The necessity of having warm and yet enough ventilated hen houses in combating croup was also emphasized. Lake county is well situated to get in many cases better than the market price for both eggs and poultry and the future of the business looks good for those who will give it the right kind of attention.

ARIZONA STOCKMEN WELCOME
GOVERNMENT LION HUNTERS
Five adult mountain lions and a cub were killed and the hunt taken up next day. On the way to the bobcat in three days made a record kill during November for Cleve Miller, a government hunter, in Arizona, employed by the biological survey of the United States department of agriculture, cooperating with the Arizona State Live Stock Sanitary board. M. E. Musgrave, district predatory animal inspector, accompanied Miller on a hunting trip, which he describes as follows:

"The first day out we found the trail of an old female lion and three yearlings that were hunting deer and had covered considerable country. The young lions confused the dogs to great extent by running back and forth along the side of the mountain. We had five dogs in the pack, and when the lions were jumped, about three and a half hours after finding a fresh kill, each took a different course. The dogs also split and treed three of the lions at one time in separate places within half a mile of each other. These were killed and the hunt taken up next day. On the way to the bobcat in three days made a record kill during November for Cleve Miller, a government hunter, in Arizona, employed by the biological survey of the United States department of agriculture, cooperating with the Arizona State Live Stock Sanitary board. M. E. Musgrave, district predatory animal inspector, accompanied Miller on a hunting trip, which he describes as follows:

"Stockmen in this district," continues the account, "are becoming convinced that the protective system used by the biological survey is the best that has been tried, and they are willing to cooperate in every way. Where the hunters use automobiles on the ranges the stockmen pay for gas, oil and repairs, as there are no government funds for this purpose. The hunters cover two or three times as much ground in this way."

 (Third Sunday of Month)

Last Sunday was the 3rd Sunday after the Epiphany. Church School and Morning Prayer were as usual. At the latter service Mr. Brock preached on the subject of the Conversion of St. Paul, as Thursday of this week celebrates that event.

St. Paul started out as a Jew of the strictest sort and was diligent in persecuting the Christians. On the road to Damascus he was struck blind and heard a voice from heaven saying to him: "Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?" Then when he found out whose voice was, he said: "Lord, what wouldst thou have me to do?" Conversion is not something that happens at a definite day, hour, or minute in the life of a Christian, as many think, but it is something that happens frequently and often in the life of a sincere Christian. It is the consciousness of the sense of sin and the desire to turn to God. It happens when one feels that he has done wrong, and when he diligently and conscientiously approaches the Holy Sacraments of the Church. There are two necessary parts to it. The first is the consciousness of sin and is exemplified in the words of Jesus to Saul: "Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?" We all hear the same voice with the same words when we are in this condition. Then the next stage is to rise up and do something for God, in the way of reforming our lives and starting anew. That sentiment is exemplified in the words of St. Paul when he said: "Lord, what wouldst thou have me to do?" All of us when we surrender ourselves to the will of God to do and be what He wants us to be, can say nothing else than "Lord, what wouldst thou have me to do?" It is that spirit that is the inspiration of all Christian living, and all missionary work of the Church.

On Sunday, Feb. 4th, this mission will be visited by the Rev. A. D. Kolkebeck for the purpose of administering Holy Baptism and Holy Communion.

On Sunday, Feb. 11th, the confirmation class will be started and will continue from then until the Bishop visits Antioch for confirmation on April 18.

Next Sunday the services will be as usual. Church School at 9:45, and Morning Prayer at 11:00. Lent is approaching and will soon be here. Let us hope and pray that during this Lent we may be blessed and favored by God, and may realize the wonderful privilege of the Church and the Sacraments. We rightly have a high conception of the Church. "Come ye, and let us walk in the light of the Lord, and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths." Isaiah II: 5:3.

News Briefs of Interest to Local People

The Spring Grove State bank is under new management. An entire new set of officers and directors were elected on Friday of last week, the reorganization being necessary because of the recent change in ownership of the institution. H. H. Franzen and son having disposed of their interest in the bank the first of the year. Well known men in Spring Grove community were the purchasers and they assumed the business on January 8th.

The newly elected officers are: Mathias J. Raugen, president; Carl W. Stenger, vice-president; Alfred J. Richardson, cashier, who were also elected directors. The other directors are: Nicholas N. Weber, P. G. Hoffman and Benj. T. Wynn.

Prohibition of the manufacture or sale of pistols or revolvers except for the use of authorized officers of the law, is provided in a bill introduced in the house last week by Rep. Thomas O'Brady of Chicago. The bill makes it unlawful for any one person to make, manufacture, buy or procure for himself or another, or to sell or dispose of to another, any gun, pistol, revolver or other firearms less than 14 inches in length.

The bill also provides for the registration, within 90 days, of the passage of the act, of all persons owning such weapons, with a chief of police or sheriff.

A penalty of a fine of from $100 to $1,000 and imprisonment of one year is provided for violation of the law and for failure to register the firearms, according to a form prescribed in the bill.

The deed shows that the price paid for the 277 feet of frontage of the Arlington Hotel sight, half of it on County street and the other half of it on Uilen street, Waukegan, immediately back of the Arlington hotel, was $206, of $57,000 for the entire tract conveyed by Frank Dady.

A contemplated suit for $5,000 against the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad, and personal property valued at $2,000, comprised the estate of Harry R. Dibble, Garnea, according to the will filed Friday in the probate court.

Automobile owners of Illinois paid the state a total of $7,869,601.84 for licenses during the year 1922, or an increase of one million dollars over the previous year, according to figures announced from the office of Secretary of State Emmerson. Approximately 500,000 more cars were in use in the state in 1922 than in 1921, an indication of rushing business among automobile dealers in the course of the year.

Herman Kaping, Ingleside, was acquitted Friday on a charge of possessing liquor by a jury in the county court of Judge Perry L. Persons. It was Kaping's second trial on the charge, a conviction having been returned by the first jury a few weeks ago. He fought his way to a new trial and won out in the legal battle with the state's forces.

The anniversary of the treaty which gave the Illinois country to British rule falls on Feb. 10. It was the treaty of Paris, signed in 1763, and by it France ceded to Great Britain the territory out of which Illinois afterward was carved. For eighty years the territory had been part of a British colony. From 1606 to 1671 it was part of the colony of Virginia, although its possession was only in name. By a treaty with the Indians, France took possession in 1671 and held it until 1763.

Charging that Conrad A. Bruhe and two aids from the state's attorneys' office raided and searched his quarters, which are located on government property and therefore out of the jurisdiction of civil authorities, J. D. Vernou, a chief petty officer at Great Lakes, took up with naval authorities a complaint against the local dry-squad officers.

All excitement over receiving a telephone call that a load of white mule was about to enter the city limits, the Rockford, Ill., police force turned out to capture the law breakers. Sure enough, the truck arrived and in it was the carcass of a white mule being conveyed to a rendering plant. The police are now after the practical joker who sent in the telephone call.

Kenosha county's new court house, when completed, will cost $823,211.

This was determined last week when the county board of supervisors in session at the court house, approved the contracts signed by the building committee with contractors for the work estimating the cost at the above figure. Architect Lindl, in discussing the contracts, declared that all figures had been compiled for extreme conditions and that an increase in these figures could not be expected while there was a possibility of a slight decrease.

The Times has just learned that a wheel tax ordinance was presented at the last regular meeting of the board and considered for passage. The copy was sent back to the office of the attorney for some alterations. It was indicated that with some corrections the ordinance would be passed and become a law. The tax for vehicles will range from $3 to $8.—The Grayslake Times.

For the first time in a century a full calendar year has passed without the coinage of a single piece of minor currency, mint officials said tonight. No pennies, nickels, dimes, quarters or half dollars will bear the date 1922. The last time there was a similar condition was for the year 1823.

The fire department in the village of Fox Lake, in the future, will not answer calls outside of the incorporation unless a permit or sanction has been given by at least three members of the village board. For outside calls, when permitted, a nominal charge will be made.

Lake Bluff dedicated its new $85,000 grammar school building on Sheridan road last Thursday.

The Illinois game and fish division, William J. Stratton, chief game and fish warden, turned in receipts in excess of expenditures last year to the amount of nearly $23,000. In the last five years there has been a net profit of the state of Illinois from this source of over $94,000. These profits have been used for other purposes than the conservation of game and fish. They should be used to improve the service and to invest in areas where game and fish may thrive.

ROAD NEEDS OF NATIONAL FORESTS GIVEN ATTENTION

A comprehensive study is now being made of the road needs of the national forests, according to the annual report of the forest services, United States department of agriculture. The figures available indicate that to complete the necessary system of forest development roads and trails, 13,560 miles of roads and 37,114 miles of trails must be constructed at an estimated expenditure of $64,693,000. For the system of forest highways of primary importance to the states, counties and communities the rough survey indicates that $107,658,000 must

EVERYTHING POINTS TO THE GREATEST SPRING DEMAND FOR FORD PRODUCTS IN COMPANY'S HISTORY

1,202,517 Ford Cars and Trucks were delivered to retail purchasers in the United States alone during 1922—

Actual deliveries for last month greatly exceeded any previous December in the history of the Ford Motor Company—

It was the ninth consecutive month in which more than 100,000 Ford Cars and Trucks were retailed—keeping the Ford Plants working at capacity to meet dealers' requirements—

In many parts of the country dealers are already finding it necessary to specify later delivery dates on certain types because there are no reserve stocks to draw from—

Commercial users, business houses and farmers, anticipating their future requirements, are placing orders and taking delivery of Ford Cars, Trucks and Fordson Tractors to insure against delay—

Everything points to the biggest shortage of Ford Products this Spring that has ever existed—

The only way you can be sure of obtaining delivery of a Ford Car, Truck or Fordson Tractor is to list your order immediately—

We have given you these facts as they actually exist so that if you are planning to purchase a Ford Car, Truck or Tractor for use this Spring or Summer, you can list your order now and take advantage of our dealer's first opportunity to make delivery.

The Glee Club has been drilling upon its choruses since the first of the year, while the principals are doing special vocal work in preparation for their roles. This year we wish to emphasize the music of the opera. The story is very modern and the songs are beautiful. Keep it in mind and be prepared to attend when the time comes.

At the request of many members the words of the songs set to the retiring and incoming matrons at the recent Eastern Star installation by Mrs. L. L. Smart and Clarence Shultz are being published:

To the retiring matron, Mrs. Robert Selter, song by Clarence Shultz:

Good bye, sister, you have led
In the happy way
And we come, just to tell you
Of our love today.
In our close companionship
You have grown so dear
Now we crown you with the glory
Of the vanished year.

Chorus
O, good-bye then
We love you more in parting
Than we have in all the days before.
We have learned to know and trust
You truly,
And thru all the coming years
We'll love you more.

As you journey on in life,
Blessings crown your way,
May we still have your guidance
As we have today.
And if ere the shadows fall
And the path seems drear,
May we all be true and faithful
To our sister dear.

Song sung to the incoming matron, Mrs. Eva Kaye, by Mrs. Louise Smart:

Arise sweet matron, now approach
The East.
Your honors wait for you with joys
Increased.
We'll follow you our part to do.
To prove ourselves in all things true.
And show our loyalty to you.
We travel thro' the maze of crowded years.

Our father sends us joys or bitter tears.
We tarry here to pledge anew,
With clasp of hand and heart most true,
Our steadfast faith and loyalty to you.
When here with you the world will all be bright,
When here with you our hearts will be light,
We'll gladly give our aid that you may know,
We love you so,
We love you so.

FOUND OUT WHAT WAS WRONG
Physician Might at Least Take Comfort in Fact That His Subconscious Mind Was Right

Have you ever done a piece of work, conscious at the time, that something was vitally wrong with it, but unable to figure out the defect until after the job was finished?

The "feeling that something is wrong" floats up vaporlike from the subconscious mind, one of every person's two brains.

A Toronto doctor tolled evenings for two winters building in his cellar an eighteen-foot motorboat for Muskoka lakes. At that time he was conscious that something was wrong, but could not figure it out, though he pondered in detail everything from engine to paint.

When it came time to take the boat to the freight train he abruptly learned what had bothered his subconscious brain: There was no way of getting the boat out of the cellar except by tearing a big hole in the foundations of the house and digging a deep opening to the outside.

Lake Villa News

Your "Uncle Thomas"

Lake Villa, like other small communities, has those who if they say something good for someone they don't like, get sore at the sayer. Well, here goes! Claire Sherwood is making a splendid postmaster and should be encouraged—recogized.

"Cash or credit." I heard a garage man say the other day, "I am going to make a 'cash and credit' price in 1923." GOOD. That is logic—good business and fairness. The fellow who pays cash should not be charged a price on what he buys to pay for charge losses.

How much does the summer residents hereabouts "stick" our merchants. Why is it towns like Lake Villa get the name of high prices—anyway in summer?

I would like to see a comparative (published) price list of standard necessities obtained in any Lake Villa, Antioch, Grayslake, Gurnee, Round Lake, Fox Lake, Waukegan and Libertyville. Would be interesting, eh?

Ninety percent of the people who have things charged (except larger buyers in emergency) could pay cash. This is true in groceries, meats, coal, drugs and other smaller necessities.

Well, anyway, the girls with skanky and plump, will we say "under supports", are now having their linings with the elongated skirts. Transparent longer skirts or skirts with some "dudads" hanging down from the former short skirts are not so bad, but the long dress, Oh! All Baba what have we done (or did) to have such a fashion.

"Fashion," what an elastic term. What terrible "murders" are committed in this name.

There was a national convention of school teachers in Chicago last week. I had occasion to study them. (No, I didn't dine, dance or attend any "parties" with any of them females). How devoted to their mission they were. Serious—intent on the work of the convention—all reflecting the confidence we repose in them to teach our children the things they should know.

"Oh, what a relief" is the thought of so many parents when school opens so they can hand over to others the care of their children. I'll bet a million dollars (and get the money in 20 minutes) against a plugged nickel that the parents who kick the most—make the most fuss—at the way school teachers care for their children have less control over them at home than those who seriously try to instill the proper home care.

The Chicago Tribune is the only person, firm or corporation anywhere to concede it is what it claims it is, "The World's Greatest Newspaper." Take away "Andy and Min," "Gooch Alley," McCutcheon and Briggs cartoons, and you have a skinny, shabby frame left.

Did you ever see a copy of the "New York Times"? If you didn't just gamble that it contains more news of the city, the state, the nation and the world in every branch of news than does the Chicago Tribune ("The W. G. N.") in three days. "The W. G. N."; it is to "laugh."

The Chicago Daily News is a reliable paper. Has less venom than any paper of its great influence in the U. S. Very few of its editorials have any teeth, however. Always seems to wait to express itself on great subjects till they hear what other papers are saying. The News editorial policy reminds me of the maiden lady who suddenly became a "cut-up" and said to the village devil who was "kidding her." "I would bite you if I only had some teeth."

One gets into the habit of discounting the Hearst paper from 50 to 75 percent (or more). "Four Hundred Dand" screams the headlines in red. "Yes," says a good guesser, "I guess someone's got a black eye." I've seen their "extras" dwindle in truth to a point where, were it a case of a private citizen, he would be called a damned crazy liar and it would be true.

Chicago needs a good morning paper, one like the New York Times, Tribune or Sun.

The Chicago Tribune is a "rule or ruin" sheet.

HOOPER MAKES BIG DEAL IN LAKE VILLA PROPERTY

Bert Hooper, who recently bought the remaining 38 lots in the Fowler Lake Villa subdivision from Frank T. Fowler, has just sold the entire frontage on Antioch road from the church to the corner of Lake avenue and some frontage on the latter street to Miss Augusta Lehmann, who owns the beautiful property on the east side of Antioch road, opposite to the property bought of Hooper. It is guessed that Miss Lehmann will beautify the property bought and thus add great attractiveness to the entrance and frontage of her very beautiful grounds.

A price on the entire triangle excepting the Jarvis hotel, Daube, Kapple, Barnstable and church property was sought from Fowler some time ago and the price given by him was "too high." We understand, however, that Lake Villa property is advancing (rightfully) in price since Fowler quoted.

TWO NEW OFFICERS ELECTED BY LAKE VILLA ASSOCIATION

Two changes were made in the officers of the Lake Villa Township Commercial association recently. Frank T. Fowler, vice-president, and the one who started the association, was succeeded by Wm. C. Wrase. Prof. Corson, secretary, was succeeded by Albie Kapple. W. M. Marks and D. R. Manner were retained as president and treasurer, respectively.

The Church on the Hill

Church School 10:00 a. m.
Fath's Alterative 11:00 a. m.
—Come, U. R. Welcome—

By (R. R. Newberry—

It isn't the preacher's flowery prayer
Or the way the choir sings,
Or the size of the coin your neighbor gives,
Or the help your brother brings.
It isn't the size of your favorite church,
Or the cost of your favorite pew,
Or the style of the clothes the members wear;
For it isn't the church, it's you.
It isn't the way the work is done,
Or the way the money's spent,
Or whether the gospel's all brought in,
Or whether there's some that's sent.
It isn't the kind of creed they love,
Or peculiar things they do,
Or whether the doctrine suits your taste;
For it isn't the church, it's you.
For a chain's as strong as the weakest link,
And it breaks with a heavy load,
But a church that's full of the liars that pull
Can level the roughest road.
If you get in tune with the Master's will,
With your hearts and your labors,
Too,
You will love your church, though it has its faults,
For it isn't the church, it's you.

Naturally Indignant.

Representative Allen T. Treadway of Massachusetts, who has been touring in Europe, and Levi Cooke of this city, who has been touring in New England, met in the house corridor and swapped experiences. When Cooke's turn came he talked so fast the congressman had no chance to get in a word. He described a visit he paid to a certain famous inn in the Berkshires. It was in the nature of a general complaint against the hotel, with a final parting shot at the bed he had to sleep upon. He wound up by telling of discovering vermin on the headboard of the bed those words: "This is the worst bed I ever slept in." (signed) Daniel Webster.

During the entire recital of this story, Mr. Treadway's countenance registered, successively, surprise, indignation, anger, despair, wrath and utter collapse. Impotently he tried to reply to the rapid-fire talk of Mr. Cooke, mopping his brow and the space under his collar with his handkerchief.

Colleagues who observed the scene thought Representative Treadway had a stroke of apoplexy. The real reason is that Treadway owns and operates that particular inn, which has for many years been the model of hotel excellence. Treadway was born on the premises and is proud of the standing of his inn, since it was the principal stage coach stop on the road from Albany to Boston.—Washington Star.

USING COMMON SENSE

If the merchants in Lake Villa advertised in the news papers of some distant big city that the residents of that place could save through trading, in person or by mail, in Lake Villa, you would say it was not good sense. You would consider that these out-of-town shoppers would have to spend money and time in making the trip; or would buy "blind" if they ordered by mail. At that, these shoppers probably could buy cheaper from our merchants whose costs of doing business are smaller. And yet it is no more foolish than for the people of Lake Villa to believe that they can buy cheaper by going to the expense of a trip, or buying by mail goods which they have never seen.

The Case and The Girl

By Randall Parrish

COPYRIGHT 1922 BY ALFRED AKNOFF, INC.

Tired by the uselessness of such thinking West finally sought the bed, and must have slept, although scarcely aware that he had closed his eyes. Some slight noise aroused him. The door leading into the hall, which he had failed to lock, stood partially ajar, and his eyes caught the vague glimpse of a figure gliding swiftly through the opening. With one bound he was upon his feet, springing recklessly forward. The hall was dark, but for a patch of moonlight at the further end. Against this he caught an instant, fleeting glimpse of the intruder. It was a woman, yet even as his eyes told him this, she seemed to vanish into thin air—the hall was empty.

Vague and indistinct as was that fleeting vision in the moonlight, West felt no doubt as to the identity of his visitor—the woman was Natalie Coolidge. His one glimpse of her vanishing figure assured him of this fact, and he drew back instantly, unwilling to follow. Where she had gone he neither or knew, nor cared. She had come to his room secretly, supposing him asleep, and this surprising knowledge dominated his mind. What could such an act mean? There was mystery here, at least, a mystery beyond his power of discernment. However, this recognition rather hardened him to his task, than otherwise.

This time he locked the outer door carefully, and lay down on the bed, wondering if there would be any further developments. As he attempted to think, he was listening eagerly for the slightest sound of movement in the hall. There was none. He could only wait, and watch for the next move. Perhaps the morning would bring full explanation. With this conception in his mind, his head sought the pillow, and he lapsed into unconsciousness.

The long training of army service caused West to awaken early, while the house was yet quiet, but with the dawn already red in the east. He crossed to the window, and looked out, caught the flutter of a white skirt, and realized instantly that, early as the hour was, Natalie Coolidge was already up and about. He wondered if her presence might not be an invitation for him? Perhaps she had deliberately chosen this early hour, before the others awoke, to explain her strange conduct of the previous evening? At least, here was an opportunity to see and talk with her alone.

He dressed swiftly, and slipped noiselessly downstairs, unlocking the front door, and emerging into the fresh air, without encountering any stray members of the household. He passed beyond a vine-draped arbor before she realized his approach, and straightened up, welcoming him with a little laugh, her eyes full of demure mischief.

"I rather suspected army discipline had not entirely worn off," she said pleasantly, "and that you might still prove to be an early riser."

"And does this expectation account for your presence?"

"Not wholly; it has become a habit with me. However, I promised to be very frank with you, did I not? Then I will begin now; this morning I really hoped I might see you for a moment before the others were stirring—we have so much to talk about."

"It certainly seems so to me," he responded honestly, yet not greatly encouraged by the amusement in her eyes. "Surely you cannot expect real service when given so blindly?"

"No, I do not. I mean to trust you fully. It is the only way; but do you still truly wish to serve?"

"I am enlisted in the cause without reserve," he insisted warmly. "While I learned but little last evening, that little was enough to convince me there is something strange under the surface. Your calling me to your assistance is no joke—you actually need me."

"I need some one on whose judgment and courage I can rely," she answered earnestly, "and I believe now that you are the one. It is rather an odd situation, Captain West, but the circumstances surely justify my action. Perhaps I shall have time to partly explain now."

She seemingly found it difficult to begin her story. The flush deepened on her cheeks, and her lips parted.

"It really seems so ridiculous," she explained at last desperately. "Almost like a dream of fancy, and I hardly know how to put the situation into words. If I were ten years younger I would almost be convinced myself that it was all imaginary, yet everything I tell you is true. I wonder if you will believe me?"

"Do not question that. I realize fully your earnestness."

"Yet I am going to test your credulity, just the same. Those people you met last evening have nothing to do with the story—none of them, at least, unless it may possibly be Percival Coolidge. I am rather afraid of him; I always have been. I believe he knows what all this trouble means, but I do not dare go and talk with him about it. That is really what is the matter, I suppose—there is no one I can talk to; they would only laugh at me."

"My father was Steven Coolidge, and was very wealthy. He did not marry until late in life, and, I have reason to believe it was a great disappointment to his brother Percival, that a child was born. Perhaps I ought not to make such a statement, but much has occurred to impress me with his dislike."

"He is your guardian?"

"Yes; you learned that last night?"

"From the colonel; he seemed to enjoy talking, and naturally, I was curious. Has Percival Coolidge wealth of his own?"

"Only what my father left him, which was a considerable sum, and a limited interest in the business. He was very much dissatisfied with his share. Before I was born he had confidently expected to inherit everything."

"The estate then is not settled?"

"Not until I am twenty-five; within a few days now."

"And your mother?"

"A woman?"

West leaned forward eagerly. "It is the estate then that troubles you?" he asked swiftly. "You imagine it has wasted?"

"No, not at all. They tell me it has increased in value. Percival Coolidge is a good business man, but something strange is going on behind the scenes. I seem to be fighting against a ghost."

"A ghost?"

"Yes; now don't laugh at me! Do you suppose I would ever have done anything as reckless as advertising for help. If I had not been actually desperate? Can you imagine a respectable girl performing so ridiculous a act, as putting her whole trust in a stranger, inviting him to her home, introducing him as her promised husband to her relatives and friends? Why, it almost proves me crazed, and, in a measure, I think I must be. But it is because I have exhausted all ordinary methods. I do not seem to be opposing anything of flesh and blood; I am fighting against shadows. I cannot even explain my predicament to another."

"A Ghost!"

"You must try," he insisted firmly, affected by her evident distress. "I must be told everything. If I am to be of any value. A half way confidence can accomplish nothing."

"But it sounds so foolish; I am being haunted! I know that, yet that is all I do know."

"Haunted, in what way?"

"I do not even know that; but by a woman, I think—a woman who must strangely resemble me. She pretends to be me—to my friends, to my servants, at my bank. I never see the creature, but I hear of her from others. She has actually drawn checks in my name, imitating my signature, and having them cashed by clerks who know me well. I am constantly reported as being seen at restaurants and hotels where I have not been, and with parties I do not know. This has been going on for a month now. I have endeavored to discuss the situation with a few people, but they only laugh at the strange idea. No one will listen to me seriously."

"And you conceived the thought that, perhaps a total stranger might prove more sympathetic?"

"Yes," she admitted, "if he was young and adventurous; provided I interested him at all. It would seem to offer me a chance; and then, if unknown to the party impersonating me, such a one might learn the truth unsuspected. Do you believe me, Captain?"

"I have no reason to doubt what you say. I mean to do my very best to uncover the mystery. You have these fraudulent checks?"

"Yes; one was returned to me only yesterday."

"I shall want them, together with one you drew yourself. You do not mind if I ask you one or two rather direct personal questions?"

"Assuredly not."

"What caused you to announce our engagement?"

She laughed, but from sudden embarrassment.

"It was silly, wasn't it! Really I do not exactly know; a sudden impulse, and the words were spoken. It occurred to me that our intimacy could be accounted for in no other way."

"So I supposed. Well, there is no harm done, but now, you understand, we must play out the game."

"Play it out?"

"Surely; act natural, permit no suspicion to be aroused. Even if I should feel impelled by duty, to kiss you, it is my privilege."

"Why—why, you cannot mean that!"

"Oh, but I do. This is no threat that I shall insist on carrying the matter to such an extreme, yet I must insist on the right if it becomes necessary."

Her eyes fell, the breath pulsing between her lips.

"I am not afraid," she said rather proudly. "Yes, I will play the game."

"Good! I knew you would. And now for the second question; why did you come to my room last night?"

She stared at him incredulously.

"Your room? I came to your room! Assuredly not; what can you mean?"

"Then it must be that I have already encountered the ghost," he declared smilingly. "For the very counterpart of you certainly visited me. I had a clear view of her. I would have sworn she was you."

"A woman?"

"Absolutely a woman; flesh and blood, no doubt as to that."

"When was this?"

"After midnight."

"It was not I, Captain West; please believe that—but hush; there comes Percival Coolidge!"

CHAPTER III

West Wins the First Hand.

The newcomer stood at the edge of the front steps, and paused long enough to light a cigarette before descending. His features were as clear cut as though done in marble, and about as expressive. For the first time, in the glare of the bright morning light, West took stock of the fellow, and realized his true nature. Instinctively he felt that here was the particular antagonist he was to be pitted against. His companion must have sensed the same fact, for she swiftly drew back beneath the shadow of the vines.

"You meet him," she whispered, "alone. I would rather he did not find us together."

She had vanished before he could interpose, slipping away so noiselessly, he was scarcely aware of her swift action. Coolidge strolled on the blue smoke of the cigarette marking his progress. West stepped carelessly forth from the concealment of the vines, watchful for any change of expression on the face of the other. There was none, not even a look of surprise, or a tightening of the lip.

"Ah! Captain," he said easily, tossing his stub aside, and drawing forth his case for another. "Glorious air this morning; the advantage of early rising; you indulge, I presume?"

"An army habit, I mean to do away with later. Thanks. I suppose breakfast is not ready?"

"Hardly yet," glancing about inquiringly. "My niece is usually out here at this hour, which accounts for my venturing forth. She is not here?"

"Not now, although there are evidences that she has been," indicating the gloves and pruning shears visible beside the walk. "We must have arrived too late."

"So it seems. You are aware of who I am, I presume? the position I hold relative to her property?"

"Certainly; you are her uncle and guardian. Under the terms of the will you remain in full control until she is twenty-five, now almost at hand, except for an annual income, payable to her monthly. Is not that the situation?"

"You have apparently made very careful inquiry," he commented with a perceptible sneer. "No doubt this was a matter of deep interest to you."

"Of some interest, I confess," acknowledged West, controlling his temper. "Although my information has not come from inquiry. Miss Natalie was kind enough to talk to me about her affairs, presupposing my interest in them. My family is far from poverty stricken, and I have a very good profession. It is quite right you should know this."

"What profession, may I ask?"

"Civil engineer."

"But not established, I imagine?"

"I had very good connections before the war. Since returning from France, I have made no effort to renew these, or seek others. I, of course, expect to do so later, and shall be in no way dependent upon Miss Coolidge's fortune."

"Although quite willing to share it, I presume?"

"I think you have insinuated that often enough," returned West, fully aroused by the insolent words and manner of the other. "Perhaps it may be well for us to have a plain understanding without further delay, Mr. Percival Coolidge. As I understand matters, you are her guardian under the special provisions of your brother's will?"

"You are perfectly right, sir, and I should have been consulted previous to this engagement," Coolidge said with dignity. "Even now it is subject to my approval."

"I think not. Your guardianship was merely a special provision of the will, with reference to the estate. So I understand, at least. At twenty-one, she became mistress of her own personal affairs, and no longer needed to consult you."

"I controlled her income."

"Only the surplus; a certain sum was to be paid her each month until she was twenty-five; then the entire estate came into her possession. Beyond this you exercised no legal authority."

"You seem well posted."

"The lady herself informed me as to these facts."

Coolidge gave utterance to an oath, which burst from his lips before it could be wholly restrained.

"D—n you! just what is your game?" he exclaimed roughly, forgetting himself.

"I controlled her income."

NORTH CAROLINA SPORTSMEN TAKE STEPS TO PROTECT GAME

The North Carolina Game and Fish Development League was formed at a meeting of sportsmen of the state on Dec. 28 at Charlotte, N. C., as a result of an address by George A. Law-year, chief United States game warden of the biological survey, United States department of agriculture. First steps were also taken toward the creation of a state department of game and fish and the enactment of a state-wide game and fish law, and conservation measures were endorsed for the protection of game and wild life, including a bill now before Congress, which has already passed the Senate, to create game refuges and public shooting grounds and to provide a federal hunting license.

The need of state-wide laws for the protection of game was pointed out as being more effective than depending on county officials and the State Audubon Society. The state is considered happily situated for game to breed, with an abundance of natural cover and a comparatively scattered human population. Game in North Carolina was said to have been abundant 20 or 30 years ago, but it has suffered from lack of proper protective laws.

FIELD INSPECTION WORK SHOWN IN MOTION PICTURES

"Guarding live-stock health," a new one-reel film recently released by the United States department of agriculture, shows the operations of the field inspection service of the bureau of animal industry. Attention is called to the large number of animals entering the big stockyards each day, and the fact that many of these animals are returned to farms as stockers and feeders. Should some of the animals be diseased they would serve to spread infection through the country. Therefore a thorough search for traces of disease is made.

Among the operations pictured are examination of railroad records to discover violations of the 28-hour law; examination of animals for traces of foot and mouth disease, hog cholera, cattle mauls, sheep scabies, glanders and tuberculosis; quarantining of cattle infected with the cattle-fever tick; and disinfection of pens and railroad cars that have held diseased animals.

The film may be borrowed from the department for limited periods or copies may be bought at the cost of printing.

Home Comforts
Reflected HereTies of Family and Domicile
Keep Residents Interested

"Home is where the heart is," is a definition largely tinged with sentiment, but it is none the less true. Many a resident of Antioch bears a strong affection for this community because for him it holds all that is dear to him. He is resolved that he will let nothing undone that may make Antioch a better town, so that his home and those who are in it may be surrounded by all the loving care that he can bestow on them.

On the other hand, the man who is a wanderer is without abiding interest in any town. Nothing holds him to this or that place, and it is of little consequence to him whether he resides here or at the next place.

The ties of home are stronger than any material ties. "Home" is merely a name, like "country," but any husband and father will pour out his last drop of blood in fighting for either. Never was a greater truth propounded than when the poet wrote:

"Be it ever so humble,
There's no place like home."

You cannot translate it into terms of money, for the meanness that may breathe more the true spirit of home than the richest palace.

The Comforts of Home.

When you talk to a hard-headed business man about such intangible you have to "show him." Mere words do not go very far when it comes to a matter of separating him from his money, yet no man who maintains a home and does not neglect those in it need hesitate about approaching such a business man for an extension of credit in case of necessity. Surprisingly large sums are advanced on a small amount of tangible security to a man building a home because such a man is a good "moral hazard."

The men who own their homes are the backbone of such a community as Antioch. They must own them, because the business of renting habitations to others, which has been largely developed in big cities, has happily not spread to communities the size of ours. The home-owning citizen is the bulwark of the nation. The nations of Europe in which Bolshevism is unable to make any headway are those in which the people own their own homes, while the ones in which its ravages are greatest are those where throughout the years it has been impossible for them to acquire even so little property as this. The scourge, therefore, has had little menace for the United States, because so many people can own their own homes, or if they do not own them, they know they can any time they want to, and nothing is to be gained through violence on others in the possessor-class.

This is of great significance to Antioch.

Making Good Citizenship.

If we want Antioch to be a city of homes, owned by those occupying them, we must provide the magnet to attract this class of citizens. The independence of a town that is largely self-sufficient, that patronizes its home merchants and that owes no divided allegiance to a distant metropolis, is just what provides this attraction. A man who builds a home of his own is no "bird of passage," for if he did not expect to remain permanently he would defer building until he reached some place he liked better. He casts his lot for life with this community, and it is not unlikely that the generation following him will likewise become a fixture, because the planning of such a citizenship is certain to build up a community that can hold its own with any in this part of the state.

Antioch faces a glorious future. It is in the midst of no less glorious present. The way is plain, Antioch at heart may do their "bit" in making this period of reconstruction a permanent step forward in the up-building of Antioch.

THIS IS OUR HOME

Antioch is our home. We have built here, expecting here to spend our lifetime. Our hopes and ambitions for ourselves and families are centered here. Naturally we have the local pride that causes us to hope that our town will grow and thrive. We put forth our efforts towards this civic end. And yet—some of us—spend our money out of Antioch and spend it elsewhere, taking this power for good away from the proper function of helping the town. When you buy your needs out-of-town you take that much away from yourself.

JACKIE COOGAN
AT CRYSTAL ON FEBRUARY 2-3

One of the reasons Jackie Coogan likes to act in front of the movie camera is the fact that he can wear the disruptable costume which has made his little figure a famous one to millions of motion picture theater-goers. He loves the ragged sweater, the torn cap and the baggy overalls, and he is never so happy as when he is wearing them.

When he returns after his day's work in the studio his real trouble begins, for his parents insist that he "dress up" in clothes in which he cannot roll around on the ground without fracturing some of the rules laid down by his father and mother.

Jackie's latest picture for First National release, "My Boy," will be presented by Sol Lesser at the Crystal theater, Friday and Saturday, Feb. 2-3.

Trevor School Notes

The fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh grade girls began their work in sewing Friday.

The few days of sunshiny weather were given a decided welcome by all the pupils.

The following incident occurred in the first grade language class:

Teacher—What was the artist's name who painted this picture? Class—Ludwig Knaus.

Teacher—Very good. What nationality was he?

Class—German.

Teacher—Who can tell me why you think he was German?

Bright pupil—Because he was happy.

PURE BRED
Holstein Cows
at Real Bargain Prices

In going about Wisconsin picking up my herd of purebreds I ran across two breeders who have sold their farms and will at once close out their herds. Both herds are free from "T. B." and abortion and the prices are the best I have found. Why not get several breeders together and go up immediately with me and buy some—the prices range from $150 to $250. A number of them are record cows in calf to a bull whose dam made 1345 pounds of butter in one year. My charge will be $10 per head and expenses—no buy, no $10 per head.

KISSING THE COOK

You have heard the old saying, "clean the table and the diners are privileged to kiss the cook."

Whether it is a penalty for not having prepared sufficient food to appease the family or whether it is a tribute to her excellency as cook we do not know.

Whether a penalty or a tribute the home cook, the mother, or housewife, likes to see her loved ones enjoy her cooking.
